Description

A classical English bracket clock, dating to the middle of the 18th Century. The fruitwood case which has been ebonised has an inverted bell caddy top, with a brass carrying handle, a break arch door with brass escutcheon and it stands on small shaped bracket feet. The brass dial has a signed name plate within the arch, an engraved and silvered chapter ring, brass spandrels and a date aperture within a matted centre. The 8 day fusee movement has an anchor escapement. The maker Gabriel Smith of Chester is listed as working 1752-1797.
