Description

An early 19th Century style mahogany bracket clock dating to the beginning of the 20th Century. It has a pagoda top with a central brass handle. The front panel and sides are inlaid with boxwood chequered stringing, brass ogee feet and a red silk lined fret back. It has a white convex enamel dial and a bevel edge glass, signed by the original retailer Reed & Son of Cambridge. The 8 day French movement sounds the hours and halves on a gong, made by Richard & Co
