Description

A solid oak cased drop dial wall clock, dating to the mid 19th Century. It has a shaped oak outer bezel, a pegged case drop box with carved sidepieces and a pendulum window that shows the swinging pendulum. The sides and convex base have hinging doors. The 12 inch diameter dial is signed by the maker Evans & Son of Handsworth. It has an 8 day fusee movement with A shaped plates and a wood rod pendulum with an invar cylindrical bob.
